Excerpt from Two Addresses: Some Extinct Pennsylvania Birds, And, Observations on Wild Animals: Delivered Before the Audubon Society, and the Boys Science Class, of Williamsport, Penna., High School, Longfellow s Birthday, February 27, 1923 Recently the newspapers Of Central Pennsylvania were enriched by a widely copied article by that brilliant young exponent of Conservation, Jherbert Walker, of Altoona, telling Of his observations Of a pair Of Ravens which make their home in some of the wilder-recesses of romantic Poe Valley, in Centre County, a very appropriate place for Ravens to frequent, for Edgar Allan Poe is said to have gone there at one time to seek a legacy from some, well - to - do relatives for whom the valley was named. W hen Mr. Walker asked your speaker his Opinion Of the merits of the article in question he replied that it was the finest outdoor article that he had read for a year, if only itt did not have the effect Of sending a group of professional egg collectors into po-e Valley to disturb the ravens. Though the raven cannot today be classed as one of the extinct Pennsylvania birds, it is so rare that the great majority of persons living in the State have never seen one and probably many here this afternoon did not know Of their exist ence-and that they nest on the Raven s - burg and in several locali ties within a dozen miles of vv-illiamspor-t. The raven is protected by law as it is a valuable insect destroyer and scavenger, and use ful to the hunters as ou-many occasions when deer which have been shot and got away and died later have been located...
