The houses, self-feeders, and water troughs were similar In 8126, construction, shape, and position. Before being put into the feeders, the feed was weighed and thoroughly mixed. Any part refused was deducted from the original weight. When two lots were pastured at the same time, the pasture was similar in kind and in area. The pigs used in these experiments Were purebred duroc-jerseys and Poland Chinas, bred and raised at this Station. At the outset, the lots were divided as uniformly as possible, according to weight, thrift, sex, age, and breed. The pigs of the first experiment were farrowed in September or early in October, 1932; those of the second, in March, 1933. Both groups had been fed normal diets and had free access to pasture with their mothers before weaning. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
