Excerpt from Biographical Sketches of Eminent British Poets: Chronologically Arranged From Chaucer to Burns, With Criticisms on Their Works, Selected From the Most Distinguished Writers; Intended for Teachers and the Higher Classes in Schools In conclusion, the editor of this work may venture to express a hope, that it is calculated to expand and strengthen the mind; to foster a taste for literary improvement and to inspire the young student with a love of all that is pure in thought, beautiful in vision, and moral in tendency. From the lives of soul poets, Sir Walter Scott has justly observed, a more important moral lesson may doubtless be derived; and few compositions can be read with so much profit. The Memoirs of Burns, of Chatterton, or of Werburgh, are conscious of any thing peculiar in my moral character, which could render such development necessary or useful, I would as readily consent to have my body dissected, if dissection could tend to point out the nature and the means of curing any particular malady.
