

Home Place (Paperback)

By Elisa Adler

Floating Island Publication, United States, 2015. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Home Place is a love story. It speaks of our relationships with place and each other, and the struggle for wholeness in uncertain times. When a damaged and idealistic young woman retreats to a mountain valley with her proud-cut, green broke gelding, the people she meets there tell her stories of how they came to and lost the place where she now lives. They tell of the 16 year-old Welsh boy, John Davies, who in 1863 walks over the ridge looking for gold and finds and marries Mary Yatkin, the Maidu headman s daughter. They tell how from that union generations of family grew and still grow - ranchers, basket-weavers, loggers, millworkers, healers, thinkers and teachers who plant orchards in the valley coves, raise animals, barns and children whom they teach to be careful and to care for the ever-present spirits who inhabit that world. As the young woman grows old and comes, like they, to be long in that place, she strings their tales along the thread of her twenty-fi ve year journal of watching. Home Place is that beaded...
