Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Kansas Court of Industrial Relations: A Modern Weapon Indiana is studying the Kansas law carefully, with a feeling that, while Indiana is a strong industrial state with much industrial voting strength, the law must be passed with the consent of both sides. The attorney of the Miners Association of Indiana came to Kansas to study the law, and was frank to say that he found many good features in it. Even before the Kansas court began to function, February 1, Charles G. Wood, of Boston, chairman of the Board of Arbitration and Conciliation of Massachusetts, came to Kansas attracted by the passage of the new law. In years of experience he is the oldest member of any board of arbitration in the United States, and upon his return to his home state he wrote news paper and magazine articles strongly praising the Kansas law and urging its adoption by Massachusetts. Sentiment is strong for the law in Oklahoma, evidenced by a large number of letters from legislators, manufacturers, oil men, labor councils and chambers of commerce.
