And we expect another series of votes in perhaps about an hour. So I am going to start with our questions of our first panel, so that we can have enough time to assess the second panel and be sure to ask questions there too. I had a question for General OReilly and Dr. McQueary. Several of our potential adversaries have demonstrated the capability to conduct coordinated missile attacks - and this is something we could face in a real-world situation. Several missile defense systems, such as Aegis BMD and Patriot Advanced Capability - 3 (PAC - 3), have demonstrated the capability to conduct both salvo launches and multiple simultaneous engagements. In your opinions, is a salvo test, firing two or more interceptors at a single target, necessary to understand the operational performance of GMD and to...
