Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Clinical Calorimetry, Vol. 17: In Affiliation With the 2nd, Medical Division This work established biological standards for the heat values of proteins, carbohydrates and fats which are to-day accepted. About the same time a calorimeter for the measurement of the heat production in man was set up in Voit s laboratory and many experiments were made with it by Carl Voit and his brother Erwin Voit. The results were apparently not satisfactory, for nothing was ever published on the subject. At this time Atwater was in Voit s laboratory, and in 1888 published from that laboratory an article on the absorption of the flesh of fish. Atwater s interest in nutrition had already been stimulated by Johnson and Brewer at Yale, and through studies in agricultural and physiological chemistry in Berlin in 1869-71. In 1877 he began investigations into dietary requirements of the people. It was Atwater s association with Voit and with Rubner, however, which gave him his knowledge of the principles of the subject of calorimetry as applied to the living organism. These...
