Not illustrated. 1837 Excerpt: .and of Occultations of Stars by the Moon, are recorded in pages 144 and 145. The Calculation of the Occultations (pp. 146-155) has been conducted in the same manner as in previous volumes of the Cambridge Observations, by the method described in the Volumes for 1830 and 1831. Precisely the same method is applied to the observations of the disappearance of one of the Solar Spots and reappearance of another, the right ascensions and declinations of the Spots at the times of observation being known by means of the auxiliary observations already described. The final equations resulting from the Calculations of the beginning and end of the Solar Eclipse of May 15, (p. 153-155.) were formed by equating the apparent distances of the centers of the Sun and Moon at the instants of observation, calculated for the place of observation from data in the Nautical Almanac, to the sum of their apparent semidiameters, calculated also from data in the same work. It may be remarked, that these equations agree sufficiently well with the equations resulting from the calculations relating to the Solar Spots. All the Observations contained in this Volume were originally set down in pencil writing in small memorandum books, which are carefully preserved for future reference.
