Excerpt from Points of Colonial Interest Around Summerville: Dorchester, Newington, Ingleside, St. James, Goose Creek It is impossible at this day to define the exact limits of the town. We know that there were two principal streets, one running north and south and terminating at the Fort, the other running east and west, and having St. George s Church at its eastern extremity. The site of the town is now an open field. Some years ago the streets could be traced by the little mounds of broken brick which marked where the chimneys had been, but even these have disappeared, and looking around upon the ploughed field encircled by the silent forest, it is hard to realize that a hundred and fifty years ago a thriving town of eighteen hundred inhabitants occupied this spot. Absolutely no trace is left of the busy pepu lation but the crumbling church-tower and a few tomb stones. For the old Fort, mysterious as the Sphinx keeps its own counsel.
