Reviews

This book might be worth a read, and superior to other. Of course, it really is engage in, still an interesting and amazing literature. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

P., 3rd February, 1910 Sir, I have another observation to make. We all did agree, at least I did agree, to the resolution of March, 1909, but every man in this House who since that time has given the slightest consideration to this question will realise that when we talked about the speedy organisation of a Canadian naval unit of the imperial navy - Muse that is the way I prefer to express it - we were speaking of something that cannot be brought about in less than ten, fifteen or twenty years. Why, my right hon. Friend to-day has even a vaguer idea of what he proposes to do than he had in respect of the National Transcontinental railway. I did not like to interrupt him; he was being interrupted a good deal; but there was one question which I should have liked to put to him, and I shall take the liberty of putting it now. He says these vessels are two-fibre built in Canada. I would like to know whether they are to be built in a private shipyard or in a government shipyard? Has the government come to any conclusion in regard to that? About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
