Excerpt from International System of Electric and Magnetic Units There are a number of reasons for considering induction and magnetizing force to be different in physical nature, just as the deflection of a spring is physically different from the mechanical force producing it. As the names of the two quantities suggest,  $B$  characterizes the magnetized state of the medium and  $H$  is the agency tending to produce a magnetized state. Perhaps the distinction is most clearly seen by the analogies furnished in the discussion of the magnetic circuit (preceding section). There is no confusion between  $D$ , the electric displacement, which characterizes a state of the medium, and  $E$ , the electric field intensity which produces the displacement. The distinction is even clearer between  $J$ , the current density in a medium, and the  $E$  which causes it.
