Excerpt from Twelfth Report of the Michigan Academy of Science: Containing an Account of the Annual Meeting Held at Ann Arbor, March 31, April 1 and 2, 1910; Prepared Under the Direction of the Council Mr. Sayer was born on a farm, called the Sayer Homestead, near Wayne. IDuPage county, Illinois, January 13th, 1876. From childhood to his Academy days he passed on the farm. He received no other schooling during the first ten years of his life than that furnished by a companionable, intelligent mother, who directed his studies. After his tenth year, he attended the country school till he entered the Elgin Academy in 1892. Three years later, he graduated from the Academy and entered Beloit College. His college days proved a formative stage in his career by developing within him a taste for the association of a college, friends, study, culture - all the features which are constituents of a college atmosphere - and a basic and intuitive love for his home. His home became the retreat for his college chums, his mother, their foster-mother. Both college and home were linked together in his mind and in his life, as inseparable support to action. Throughout his career, these two factors were prominent, even foremost. His graduation from Beloit occurred in 1899. Ambition of a noble type was aroused in him, and instigated by his parents, he undertook special work in the University of Chicago, choosing bacteriology and chemistry for his chief lines of study. In 1901 he was placed in charge of a laboratory at Grafton, Illinois, by Dr. E. O. Jordan; for the purpose of examining the waters of the Chicago Drainage Canal. With the discontinuance of...
