A SECRETLY HANDICAPPED MAN

North Wind Publishing. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 374 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 0.8in. After more than 30 years weathering stares and severe public and professional stigma, growing up in the working class of Depression Era Pittsburgh, and trying desperately to enter the new burgeoning field of television, the author experienced a miracle. Born without feet or one hand, new advances in medical science provided artificial legs which gave him a normal height, a natural appearance and gait, and permitted him to enjoy a previously unknown, life altering public anonymity. Being out of the spotlight of public stigma brought him peace. He never shared his story, and held his secrets fiercely. He has never seen himself as being different, nor defined himself in dramatic terms. An experienced, serious and driven educator and television executive, outdoorsman, sailor, carpenter, fisherman, he has formed his reality. His survival is a triumph, his life a victory. He doesn't understand that his accomplishments are remarkable. It is truly inspirational. It will help other people to have a greater appreciation of the issues you so eloquently describe by your experiences. Dr. Anthony Grieco, NYU Medical School The book provides any reader, casual or otherwise, deep insights into the life of a person born very different physically and later transformed into yet another physical being. That makes the story unique, in a class of its own. I come away from it with a much deeper understanding of the impact of handicapping conditions on a person's development. Not a tear or moment of heartache is left out. What this man went through in his rise above adversity is inspirational in every respect. Don Ferguson, Dean Emeritus, School of Education, New Mexico State University What I so admire is the lack of self pity. It is one painful step...
