This was the state of things, for many years up to ISI Ju. Thi was the state of things, in which the people of England had lons; lived. This had been llie state df things ever since all the young farmers, tradesmen, -manufacturers, artizans and labourers became men. They had never had any knowledge of any other state of things. On nn impression, produced in their minds by this state of things; on a view of these prices, compared with the accompanying expeuces of living; on these were all their calculations, all their enterprizes...
