It is rather ornamental, but has no value for export. It should be a useful wood in the Protectorate. It will not take nails, being fissile; is hard to saw, but planes fairly easily and smoothly. It turns very well, and takes a good polish. Weight per cubic foot, 64 lb. No. 441. Pterygota sp. A very coarse, inferior wood of dirty-white colour. The specimen was too small for proper tests, but it is evident that the wood has little value. Weight per cubic foot, 43J lb. No. 456. Voacanga oblusa. K. Schum. A reddish-brown wood of fine and open grain; apparently a sapwood tree. It is not ornamental, and is of no value for export, but may be useful for construction. It takes nails rather well, though it is somewhat fissile. It is tough and hard to saw; planes...
