Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Speech of Thomas Morris, of Ohio, in the U. S: Senate, February 9, 1839 Cincinnati. There they are in the ascendant. They control the city elections, regulate what may be termed the morals of the city, give tone to public opinion, and rule the roost by virtue of their superior piety and intelligence. The Republican tells us that they are not laboring Loco focus - but drones and consumers - the rich and well born, of course; men who have leisure and means, and a disposition to employ the latter, to equalize whites and blacks in the slaveholding states. Even now the absconding slave is perfectly safe in Cincinnati. Let us doubt whether an instance can be adduced of the recovery of a runaway in that place in the last four years. When negroes reach the Queen city, they are protected by its intelligence, its piety and its wealth. They receive the aid of the elite of the Buckeyes, and we have a strong faction in Kentucky struggling zealously to make her one of the dependencies of...
