Not illustrated. 1853 Excerpt: .correspond to the arc of the terrestrial equator between their terrestrial meridians, and will therefore measure their difference of longitude. E 50 DETERMINATION OF GREENWICH MEAN TIME. Now TE, or the angle T PE, is the sidereal time at the place whose meridian is PZE and TEQ, or the angle TPQ is the sidereal time at the place whose meridian is PZ Q; consequently, the difference of the sidereal time at any two places at the same instant, is equivalent to the difference of the terrestrial longitudes of the two places. 92. In order to find the sidereal time at our own place of observation, we have only to observe the transit of any star whose M is marked in our catalogue; if then we know, or can find by any means, the sidereal time at the other place when our observation was made, we at once obtain the difference of longitude of the two places; and, if either place be on that meridian from which all terrestrial longitudes are measured (the meridian of Greenwich), this difference will be the longitude of the other place, east, if the time at that place is later than at Greenwich, and west, if the contrary. 93. What has been here said of sidereal time applies equally to mean solar time and to apparent time, only that, in the latter case, we have no direct means of obtaining its exact amount at the distant place, except through the intervention of...
