Brand New Book  Print on Demand .During the Second World War almost 200 photographers and reporters of the Associated Press volunteered to cover the war across the globe. Risking their lives on the Normandy beachheads, they followed the advancing allied army, being present at the discovery of the Nazi death camps, presenting evidence of the Holocaust to the world. Edward Haralson, Brian Davies and David Williams were amongst these brave men who didn t know what they were about to witness, especially Ed Haralson almost getting shot on Omaha beach after stowing away on a landing craft.
