Excerpt from Abraham Lincoln and Reformers: William Lloyd Garrison; Excerpts From Newspapers and Other Sources Loyalists of the American Revolution, styles him of Massachusetts; but the name has not been met with in that State before the present century by the most diligent searchers of her archives. His comparatively early death will account for the diversity of traditions in regard to him among his own descendants, the most trustworthy of which is that he was not a native of the colonies, but of the mother country. Five children had been born to Joseph and Mary Garrison, the youngest, Abijah, being an infant in arms - say in the spring of 1774 when the mother started in a boat down the river to pay her father a visit, taking her babe with her, and a lad who lived in the family. The river was clear of me when she started, and she apprehended no danger. Long before she got to her Journey 5 end, the ice broke further up the river and came down with such force against her boat as to break it badly, and compel her to exchange it for an ice-cake, which was driven ashore by a larger piece of me. Like a mother, she wrapped her babe in all the clothes she could spare, and threw him into the snow on the shore. By the aid of a willow limb which overhung the river, she and the lad saved themselves. She took up her babe unharmed. As she was wander ing-in the woods, without guide or path, she saw the smoke from an Indian hut, and on going to it found there an Indian who knew her father. He entertained...
