By Peter M. Gideon, Of Excelsior, Minn. Omitted from the Report of 1879, and now printed by order of the Society. Mr. President and Fellow Citizens: I presume that we all feel that we came here to promote State and national greatness, by encouraging the growth of fruit. The culture and use of fruit we hold to be the greatest of all civilizing elements known to man, and the more and better, the greater the advancement of moral refinement; and to that end we are here to ascertain the best in quality that are adapted to our climate. And not only to ascertain the best now extant, but to encourage the...
