HRD Press Inc.,U.S., United States, 2008. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Is the e-learning you create a meaningful and powerful experience for your audience? It will be after this innovative, how-to workshop. Designing the Learning Moment will help you establish a personal, systematic approach to designing more creative e-learning - regardless of your background, personal strengths, tools at your disposal or budget. This new approach to designing courses combines inspiration and the innovative use of leading tools, theories and methodologies. It helps you discover how to make those good courses better. You ll walk way with: an awareness of learning moments and how they impact our lives and the way we learn; a quick reference to basic steps to creating good e-learning courses; methods for applying and measuring more innovative approaches within your course design; and, a participant guide with lots of room for notes and comments in the margins.Topics covered include: current trends in learning; what do your students want; the creative use of authoring tools to actively engage your audience; how to motivate and inspire - not confront; how to create new thinking and behaviors through innovative, yet relevant, questions; transferring learning to performance from the very beginning; and, project constraints - managers, clients, budgets, resources, technological requirements - and how to define, rank and overcome them. The workshop includes 5-10 minute participant presentations of recent online learning projects for peer review and discussion.
