Excerpt from Patriotism, the Safe Guard of the Nation A Paper read before the Kansas Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, March 7, 1894, by Companion Major O. B. Gunn. Patriotism is defined as the love of ones country, and a patriot is one who zealously supports and defends it. To be loyal to ones country is to be devoted to the maintenance of law, to be ready to uphold the constitutional authority, to be faithful to the lawful government, and to be ready to take up arms in its defense when it is assailed by its enemies. The germ of Patriotism is born in the cradle, and is developed in the home. Its first development is in the love and loyalty between the mother and the young child; then comes the loyalty of the members of the family one towards another, and all towards their home, which all stand ready to defend. With the lessons of obedience, love and integrity taught in the home come a high and pure type of loyalty. Next comes the loyalty to ones own city or county and its environments. With a larger growth comes the loyalty to ones native or adopted State; still later, with a broader understanding of affairs, comes loyalty to the Nation, and as all local growth and prosperity depends upon the growth and prosperity of the Nation, so all loyalty finds its highest type in the love of the nation and obedience to its Constitution and laws, which is summed up in the word Patriotism. It is written that, A man shall leave his father and mother and cleave unto his...
