By William L Stidger

Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Link: Published Monthly The sergeant went into the florist shop a little shyly. He said: I want a pot of tulips. I want something that you can put fancy green stuff around and tie a bow on. Something nice, see. It s for a lady. The florist - a tired little man - peered up at the sergeant s breadth of shoulder, at the intent blue of his eyes, and mentally marked down the largest pot of tulips. He said, The nicest ones I have are white ones. And the sergeant nodded, Okay. Doll em up and wrap em up and I ll get going. There was a rustle of paper, the soft crinkle that satin ribbon makes when it s tied into a bow, and the rattle that a bill makes when it changes hands. And then the sergeant was out on the street, with his arm curved around a paper-swathed bundle, and was walking toward the place where she lived. This was the day before Easter and on Easter he was due...
