Kluwer Law International, Netherlands, 2016. Hardback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. International Competition Law Series Volume 68 EU Competition Law, Data Protection and Online Platforms. Data as Essential Facility provides a highly topical study of how EU competition law interacts with data on online platforms. All agree that the digital economy contributes to a dynamic evolution of markets and competition. Nonetheless, concerns are increasingly raised about the market dominance of a few key players. Since these companies hold the power to drive rivals out of business, regulators have begun to seek scope for competition enforcement in cases where companies claim that withholding data is needed to satisfy customers and cut costs. This book is the first to focus on how competition law enforcement tools can be applied to refusals of dominant firms to give access to data on online platforms, such as search engines, social networks, and e-commerce platforms - commonly referred to as the gatekeepers of the Internet. What s in this book: The question arises whether the denial of a dominant firm to grant competitors access to its data could constitute a refusal to deal , thereby leading to competition law liability under the so-called essential facilities doctrine, according to which the firms need access to shared knowledge in order to be able to compete. Building on this concept, and using a multidisciplinary approach, the book analyses such issues and topics as the following: data portability; interoperability; data as a competitive advantage or entry barrier in digital markets; market definition and dominance with respect to data; disruptive versus sustaining innovation; role of data protection and intellectual property regimes; economic trade-off in essential facilities cases; disentangling data protection and privacy; and data-related competition concerns in merger cases. The author draws on a wealth of relevant material,...
