Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Shakespeare Tercentenary: Suggestions for School and College Celebrations of the Tercentenary of Shakespeare s Death in 1916 The celebration in schools and colleges of the Tercentenary of Shakespeare s death in 1916 affords one of the best possible opportunities to vitalize and coordinate the work done in a group of interrelated subjects. This is the group involved in the highest and most inclusive form of art. the drama; and it comprises literature, music, art. the handicrafts, such as shopwork and sewing, and physical education. The celebrations of schools may be of large variety; they may range from those given by a single school as a whole, or by a part of a school, to those given by all the schools of a community in concert, or as forming part of a general community celebration. The festivals may take place either indoors or outdoors; in school assembly rooms and auditoriums, in school yards, public parks and gardens, or open field and forest. Such school celebrations will bring the children into lino with the various forms of adult celebration planned on a large scale throughout the country, and their own juvenile effort will enable them to bring a keener appreciation to more mature productions. Stress may be laid first of all upon the opportunity for coordination, especially of literature, the focal subject, with music and the mimetic arts of dance and drama. A new emphasis is needed in literary work upon the fact that literature is primarily something to be heard; something declaimed or sung or dramatically interpreted, and not merely a matter of print. School music should become more deliberately the handmaid of literature, and...
