Not illustrated. 1909 Excerpt: . . . between feeling and thought while the harmonic numbers unite feeling and thought in complete concord: the former are arbitrary and false, the latter are self-asserted, unalterable and true. At 6) and c) the chord-intervals and harmonic intervals agree, but this agreement becomes less and less frequent the further we penetrate into the domain of chords, and therefore the call for exact harmonic analysis will grow correspondingly more and more frequent. Intervals are further to be distinguished under two heads: 1. Intervals of concurrence. 2. Intervals of succession. To the first belong the intervals formed by the concurring components of a tones harmonic thread and of a chord. To the second belong all steps from one tones harmonic thread to another and from one chord to another; in short, all steps in one voice and in combined voices. Here is an example in one voice: --351535513 731 I IV i v7 In moving from one of these tones to another the steps are major second, major second, pure fourth, major second, minor third, and so on. Thus we observe the above intervals in the ordinary sense of length of steps, to perceive and know which is to perceive and know very little since such intervalsteps give us no intelligence whatever of what is most essential, namely, the inherent harmony of each of the two tones in such a step. The essential thing to perceive and know is that in moving from the first to the second tone...
