Devolpi, Inc. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 315 pages. Nuclear Reductions and Counter-Terrorism (A Technically Informed Perspective) completes a comprehensive 3-volume series, Nuclear Insights: The Cold War Legacy. The lead authors extraordinary technical qualifications and relevant experience have resulted in a thorough and unique history and special evaluation in Volumes 1 and 2 -- of nuclear weaponry including their origin, testing, stockpiles, delivery systems, and the current institutional burden. In this Volume 3, the primary concerns are what to do with residual nuclear arsenals and their sensitive nuclear materials: that is, how to reduce the risk of nuclear accidents, and how to eliminate unnecessary military systems and materials. Its one thing to publically favor nuclear reductions; its another (not so straightforward) matter to actually implement permanent reductions. This third volume of the Nuclear Insights series also identifies and evaluates residual effects of the Cold War, especially consequences related to nuclear weapons and their peacetime evolution. Volume 3 provides a knowledgeable assessment of current risks and future potential of industrialized nuclear technology and inherited nuclear weapons. Here, therefore, are the respective roles of each volume in Nuclear Insights: Volume 1 is a insider history of nuclear weapons development and public dissent during the Cold War; Volume 2 reports on and examines nuclear power, technology, peaceful applications, and proliferation risks; and Volume 3 is a technically informed perspective about nuclear reductions, arms control, and counter-terrorism. A recent supplement to Volume 2 provides a comparative assessment of the nuclear accidents at Fukushima (Japan), Chernobyl, and Three Mile Island reactors. All three volumes are unique, having originated with a written collaboration by four nuclear scientists and engineers, from both sides of the Cold War Iron Curtain, two of whom had technical experience with nuclear weapons, and all of whom had professional careers involving nuclear...
