Excerpt: . . . to the building of it, and give instructions respecting the colour, and c. and I was to inform the Governor when it would be ready. When it was ready, the coach maker called on me and told me he wanted the money, and handed me the bill. I told him then, it was generally understood there was a credit of six, nine or twelve months, that people from the southward, generally had that credit. He said there was nothing stated at the time the carriage was bespoke. I think i told the Governor myself there was a credit; however, he, the oach-maker, insisted upon being paid at a certain time--without my informing the Governor, I gave my own note at sixty or ninety days, which he said would answer his purpose, as he could get it discounted at bank I think I wrote to the...
