A Woman s Civil War: A Diary with Reminiscences of the War, from March 1862 (Paperback)

By Cornelia Peake McDonald

University of Wisconsin Press, United States, 1992. Paperback. Condition: New. New. Language: English . Brand New Book. On the night of March 11, 1862, as the heavy tramp of Confederate marching troops died away in the distance - her husband s regiment among them - Cornelia Peake McDonald began her diary of events in war-torn Winchester, Virginia. MacDonald s story of the Civil War records a personal and distinctly female battle of her own - a southern women s lonely struggle in the midst of chaos to provide safety and shelter for herself and her nine children. For McDonald, history is what happens inside the house . She relates the trauma that occurs when the safety of the home is disrupted and destroyed by the forces of war - when women and children are put out of their houses and have nowhere to go. In an introduction to McDonald s autobiography, Minrose C. Gwin stresses the importance of this diary not only for its view of the Civil War through a woman s eyes but also for its insistence that history is as much a domestic subject as an account of the public affairs of men.
