RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 44 pages. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)229091870 Subject: Alcohol -- Taxation -- Law and legislation -- United States. Excerpt: . . . Unfair trade practices Unfair trade practices regulated under the FAA Act concern the use of exclusive retail outlets, tied-house arrangements, commercial bribery, and consignment sales. The first three provisions are designed to prevent producers, wholesalers, and importers from entering into agreements, transactions, or arrangements that threaten retailer independence. The provision on consignment sales is designed to prevent industry members from entering into consignment sales, conditional sales, sales with the privilege of return, or other than bona fide sales with retailers or wholesalers. Labeling and advertising Labeling and advertising of alcohol beverages are regulated under a consumer protection mandate. Regulations issued by TTB require labels and advertisements to provide adequate information to consumers regarding the identity and quality of these products and to prohibit misleading statements or representations, including misleading health claims. The labeling provisions are enforced principally through the issuance of certificates of label approval which must be obtained by bottlers and importers. American viticultural areas (discussed, infra) are established under...
