THE LAST JAGUAR (PAPERBACK)

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Large Print. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .From THE LAST JAGUAR -- Finally, after riding through the rain for nearly three hours, John Bowden pulled up. On their right, below them, the stream had swollen to more than twice its normal size. Bowden pointed ahead and slightly above them. Through the trees, Tom could just make out a portion of the slope of a roof. He nodded vigorously and the three men moved for-ward. When they were fifty feet from the structure they stopped again. Lightning flashed. Tom looked at Bowden. What s wrong? he yelled. Something s not right. Bowden returned. Someone s living here-or was until recently. Look at the woodpile and the yard. This place has been kept up! He was right. Brush and grass had been recently cut back from around the house. Wood stacked neatly alongside the house had not yet been darkened by weather. The axe was not in sight. A window along one side of the cabin showed no sign of neglect. Curtains hung there, but no light came from the win-dow. No smoke came from the chimney. The door was ajar. One of the hinges was broken. Slowly, the men walked their horses through the rain. Lightning flashed again. The eerie feeling Tom had the night before came back to him. He shivered-not only from the wet and cold, but also from something unknown. Ten paces from the front porch, they stopped again. Bowden looked at Jesus. The Mexican nodded back. Taking his rifle from its scabbard, he got off his horse and walked to the house. The first thing Jesus noticed was the buzzing of dozens of flies. Then he stepped onto the porch and the death-smell struck...
