Date :2009-12-1. China nearly 30 years of housing reform achievements Needless to say, but for the housing problem of low-income people, housing policy is often difficult to work. Often-criticized affordable housing, low-cost housing development, unsatisfactory, soaring real estate prices - 1998 housing reform program after 11 years, we not only did not pass the three housing supply system transition to a fully market-oriented housing market threshold Instead, more and more, resulting in unprecedented demand for social housing. After the 2008 financial crisis, the Chinese government introduced a guarantee of up to 900 billion yuan of housing projects, including new 200 is a low-rent housing, 400 million for affordable housing, and the completion of 100 million households forestry, agriculture, and mining shanty area renovation project. Large enough number of people lifted the spirit, but have their own interests and aspirations of local governments and developers operate, but also increased the elusive variables, appears to scale, but much larger compared to low-income country crowd, but this is just a start. The rapid development...
