During the 1950 fiscal year, persons were fully rehabilitated into employment, compared with in the preceding fiscal year. This record was achieved despite increased cost Of services and a rise in the number Of severely handicapped persons who required more extensive and costly services. The yearly total Of rehabilitants apparently has reached the poten tial peak for funds and facilities at the present level. The program is operated in all 48 States, the District Of Columbia, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico under the Federal Vocational Rehabilitation Act and companion State statutes. Continued lack Of Territorial funds again prevented Alaska from carrying out its approved plan of operation during the year.
