All too often a budding Tai Chi practitioner will rush right out, buy the first book or DVD about it that they see at the store, grab some loose clothing and head right out for an hour or two of outdoor exercise. Sadly, the experience is usually less than positive and they end up with nothing to show for their effort. Even after weeks of doing it they still feel stressed and lack energy. The book ends up in the rafters in the garage and the dream of an enjoyable or fun exercise regime disappears. Another scenario that occurs frequently is...
