By Maryland Agricultural College

Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from Reveille, 1903 Our state though, relatively speaking, limited in area, is unique in the variety of her natural resources. There is scarcely a State East of the Mississippi, and North of the Carolinas which may not find its counter part -in soil, climate and productions in some sections of Maryland; yet in Maryland the opportunities offered to compete with these states, are for the most part over looked. Where intelligent and scientific methods have been practiced, we have seen that Maryland can vie with Minnesota in wheat, with Illinois in corn, with Virginia in tobacco, with New York in apples, with Delaware in peaches and with Ohio in stock, and with New Jersey in vegetables. Those who are succeeding in these respective specialties are working along modern scientific lines, and it is in this Modern Scientific Agriculture that instruction is being offered at our Agricultural College today! With the power that knowledge gives, the hundreds of abandoned farms in our State can be reclaimed and made to blossom like the rose; millions of dollars could thereby be added to...
