Because fast solvers were used to extend the solution to an enclosing rectangle, this method avoided many of the standard problems associated with integral equations. The equations that arose were Fredholm integral equations of the second kind with bounded kernels. In this paper we use iterative methods to solve the dense nonsymmetric linear systems arising from the integral equations. Because the matrices are very well-conditioned, conjugate gradient-like methods can be used and will converge very rapidly. The methods are very amenable to vectorization and parallelization, and we describe parallel and vector implementations on shared memory multiprocessors. Numerical experiments are described and results presented for a 3-dimensional interface problem for the Laplacian on a recording head geometry. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at This book is a reproduction of an important historical work. Forgotten Books uses state-of-the-art technology to digitally reconstruct the work, preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy. In rare cases, an imperfection in the original, such as a blemish or missing page, may be replicated in our edition. We do, however, repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully; any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works.
