Where generations meet and romance still thrives. A string of bad luck leads Sheridan McLaughlin back to her godfather and his precious nightclub for a job. But once back at The Crystal Rose, Sheridan discovers that Uncle Joel has a new associate, none other than the infamous investment tycoon, Russell Madison, the son of a man her father hated for years. Russell is, and always will be, a renowned womanizer who would commit every sin known to man before committing to a woman. Unfortunately, Sheridan doesn't find out that he is not only an associate, but a new partner until after she decides that she detests him. Russell has a knack for throwing her metabolism out of whack by setting off her temper, making her knees turn to jelly, indecently propositioning her, charming secrets out of her and sending her brain into a fixated stupor. All reasons enough to despise the insufferable beast. Russell has his own reasons for being at The Crystal Rose, but he never expected to be confronted with the problems of dealing with...
