From Fu Manchu to Kung Fu Panda: Images of China in American Film (Hardback)

By Naomi Greene

University of Hawai i Press, United States, 2014. Hardback. Condition: New. New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Throughout the twentieth century, American filmmakers have embraced cinematic representations of China. Beginning with D.W. Griffith s silent classic Broken Blossoms (1919) and ending with the computer-animated Kung Fu Panda (2008), this book explores China s changing role in the American imagination. Taking viewers into zones that frequently resist logical expression or more orthodox historical investigation, the films suggest the welter of intense and conflicting impulses that have surrounded China. In the United States, the exceptional emotional charge that imbues images of China has tended to swing violently from positive to negative and back again: China has been loved and- as is generally the case today- feared. Using film to trace these dramatic fluctuations, Naomi Greene relates them to the larger arc of historical and political change. She finds that American ethno-centrism is related both to an ever-present sense of American exceptionalism and to a Manichean world view that perceives other countries as friends or enemies. Greene analyzes a series of influential films, including classics like Shanghai Express (1932), The Good Earth (1936), and Shanghai Gesture (1941); important cold war...
