Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Canadian Nurse and Hospital Review, Vol. 16: January, 1920 We were soon warm by the roaring fire in the cottage, thus giving us a little time to take in our surroundings. The cottage consisted of a space 20x14 x 8, with a partition through the centre. The outer part was used as a washroom, and the inner was furnished with two single cots, two chairs, an office desk, and a clock on the wall. The cots were equipped with feather mat tresses, pillows and comforters. The mattresses were covered with white sheets, and the pillows and comforters with ?owered cambric and checked gingham, fastened with hooks-and-eyes at one end. Everything was scrupulously clean. The walls were decorated with yellow paint to a wainscoting height, and the remainder white. On the desk was a coal oil lamp, placed on a conventional design doily; also a pitcher of drinking water and a glass. A basin of hot water, towels and soap were then placed in readiness for us to remove the travel stains of our journey. Then the question of dinner arose. Would we have it brought over to the cottage, or go to the community house? We de cided in favor of the community house, on account Of there being less work involved. Entering the kitchen, where women were at work in preparing various lines of food, we were shown through to the community dining hall, passing the long rows of board tables, with benches on both sides, and all painted red. The long table arrangement is rather unique. The coffee is made hot in a hot-water kettle, and placed at the end of the table on a wooden stand, with a...
