Original publisher: Cleveland, Ohio : National Aeronautics and Space Administration, Glenn Research Center, 2010. Excerpt: . . . goals is reducing the cost of space-related activities, including transportation; which is a primary focus of the Space Technology Enterprise. Technological advances made by this Enterprise, and their applications, will provide a new engine for economic growth while ushering in a new era of space activity. Space manufacturing, energy, and tourism industries could be flourishing within the next half century. Although NASAs broad mission is driven by the Space Act, the specific programs that are conducted within our Enterprises, and the priorities placed on them, are driven by the directives of the Administration and the Congress. As such, the programmatic content of our Enterprises changes over time as we respond to shifts in customer needs as well as domestic and international policy priorities. The specific content and prioritization of activities for our Enterprises will be presented in their Strategic Plans. The development of a balanced set of Agency priorities among the Enterprises will lay the groundwork for the budget process. Crosscutting Processes Underlying the activities of the Agency...
